

Ah, Sugar! Layout

DESIGNER: Nicole Ratzlaff

Close your eyes and think about something that makes you happy. Now, what do you smell? How does that make you feel? Can you almost taste it? It is amazing to me how tied together our memories are with our five senses. I like food and the comforting memories that come along with it. With every holiday there is a tradition that brings back a strong childhood memory, and for me sugar cookies is one of the strongest when it comes to smell and taste. Preserve your memory about a smell or a taste that you want to capture for generations to come!

INSTRUCTIONS

1. Using white cardstock as your base, add an 11 1/2 inch square of kraft cardstock to the

- center. Stitch around the edge.
2. Cut a long piece of patterned paper about 5 1/2 inches wide. Remove the guard from your corner punch and use it to scallop one edge. Adhere to page and stitch around.
 3. Print photos and double mat them with white and green cardstock. Adhere to page as shown. Add photo corners to your main photo.
 4. Print journaling onto white cardstock and double mat and adhere with 3D Dots.
 5. Tie a ribbon around the layout and finish with a bow. Add pins and buttons for more detail.
 6. Add title and more threaded buttons to finish.
 7. Tip for Success: While I did not include a recipe on this layout I did consider it, and might do one with it of me and my Mom making cookies when I was younger. Think about other things you might want to include so that your favorite memories today are passed along to those you love.
